

Leo Stakos

Most people see Leo Stakos as a vibrant TV host on his national television series “Fish TV”. But if you look further there’s a lot more to Leo than meets the eye. Leo grew up in an average household in Toronto, nothing flashy, just your typical family.

His success began at age of 16 when he started his first business, and he knew then that his entrepreneurial spirit would lead to greater things. All this experience allowed him to focus on what he does best, Motivate and Sell. Over the past 20 years Leo’s business sense has allowed him to have success from import/export and manufacturing, to promotions and television production. His current television series “Fish TV”, which has been on air over 10 years, has allowed him to host several outdoor industry events and star in television commercials which led to Leo being nominated for 9 Golden Moose TV awards, winning best salt water episode/show in the country. Leo actively lends his celebrity to several charity events such as Rally for Kids with Cancer, The Michael “Pinball” Clemons Foundation and Operation Springboard where he is a member of the board of directors. In 2004 Leo founded the Fish TV Celebrity Showdown; a charity event which has raised much needed funds for the Princess Margaret Hospital Foundation.

Leo has now taking his skill set and is currently focusing on sales and motivational speaking seminars, his topics include the “ABC’s of Sales, From Rags to Fishes and How to Reach your Potential”.
